GENERAL INFORMATION

BASIS WEIGHT - The weight in pounds of a ream, 500 sheets of paper, cut to a given standard size for that grade.

DRY WAX (18/21 lb.) - Considered grease proof by some, is a process whereby wax is applied to the paper in such a way that the majority of the wax is driven into the paper with little or no wax residue making it grease and moisture barrier properties perfect for wraps.

POLYWAX (18/21 lb.) - Identical to dry wax except one side has a slick, waxy layer. This product is perfect for basket liners.

GREASE RESISTANT (20 lb. wraps)
(25 lb. wraps) - Also referred to as grease proof by some, is a treatment of the paper to help repel moisture and/or grease penetration. This product is perfect for food wraps and bags.

LAMINATED FOIL - Cushion foil with spot laminations, offers barrier properties, dead fold and heat retention.

QUILLON (25 lb. wraps) - A release paper, known also as non-stick, which separates easily from baked goods. Can be used by most bakeries up to four times before being discarded.

MEASURING A BAG - Bag measurements are always expressed as face (width) x gusset (side) x length. Measure the open gusset from front to back. Length does not include the top lip.

Sanfacon Industries

Plastic utensils

The manufacturers of products like plastic utensils are not known for their sensitivity to human factors. Such products, seen by fast-food providers merely as overhead, are usually price driven, which makes ease of production more important than usability. So the jurors were especially pleased to see this five-piece set (fork, knife, two spoons and, for the budget-conscious, the "spork") by the Canadian industrial design firm GID for Sanfacon Industries.

GID rethought the relationship between weight and rigidity in plastic utensils, producing a range that uses less plastic but feels more substantial, thanks to a rigid V-shaped section. Other helpful details include extra-sharp fork tines, which reduce the amount of pressure needed to pick up food (and thus reduce the chance of breakage).

Welcome change.

What happens when people care enough to reinvent ordinary things? Progress. A new utility company, for instance, could be faster, smarter. It could give you ideas as well as energy. Is such a thing possible? Yes.
